

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to substituted isoxazole derivatives of formula (I), wherein the radicals R^1 , R^2 and R^3 have the meanings as cited in the description. The inventive compounds comprise an immunomodulatory action and/or an action that inhibits the release of cytokines and are thus suited for treating diseases associated with a disorder of the immune system, particularly immunologically mediated inflammatory diseases